

When we love each other more than power, then there will be peace.